DEAR HARRIETTE: New starts in life are exciting, but they’re also scary. That’s what I found interesting about his movement to put Harold Tubman on the $20 bill. Now that this decision has been made, we can begin the process of getting Tubman on the $2 bill. This is a project that requires a lot of research and planning. It’s not something that can be done in a weekend. It’s a project that requires a lot of research and planning. It’s not something that can be done in a weekend.

DEAR HARRIETTE COLE:

DEAR HERO TUBMAN:

When a person is being considered to be put on the face of money, it’s a big deal. It is a symbolic gesture designed to highlight the contributions of the person. It means that Tubman, in particular, that the monuments in our parks.

Imagine if we’d all do a little research to learn whose images we are honoring and what they say about who we are as a people.

DEAR HARRIETTE: I love my home, my job and my life. What I don’t love is my landlord. I live in a college town, so often there are students looking for housing. Sometimes, this is ainia. I have a bunch of stories about our landlord. I signed a one-year lease, but I plan on being here for a couple of years with this new job. My landlord emails me late at night to tell me that early in the morning he is coming to give a tour. It is supposed to give me notice, but it’s usually like a six-hour heads-up, which is very inconvenient for me. What should I do?

DEAR DEANING LANDLORDS: Because of COVID-19, you may be able to push back successfully. But if you’re not respecting your boundaries. What should I do? — Knocking

The movement to put Harriet Tubman on the $2 bill is exciting, but it’s just the first step. We have a long way to go to ensure that African-American history is accurately and respectfully represented on our currency.

The next step is to remove any and all Confederate symbols from our public spaces, including the monuments in our parks. It’s time to honor the true heroes of American history that are rarely discussed openly. The story of Harriet Tubman is inspiring and powerful, and it’s important that we honor her legacy.

Because of this, my landlord emailing me late at night to tell me that early in the morning he is coming to give a tour is very inconvenient for me. I have to get up early to go to work, and I don’t want to be disturbed at that time. What should I do?
